THE COMMON PEACH

NAMES.

A. دراقن .

G. Μηλον .

L. Malum Perſicum.

H. Hőjéz .

G. Pferſich.

F. Peché :

S. Durazno .

D. Perſik.

PARTS
Flowers, F
Kernel
PREPARA
A Syrup

PLACE.

In warm Climates it makes a large Tree, Here it is always planted against Walls.

Fr
Mar
The vari furnish us in Aug.t Sept.r a

DESCRIPTION.

The Bark of this Tree is a greenish Brown, The bearing Buds 1, are enclosed a a brown Scaly Covering, In the Spring it opens, and the Bud of the Blossoms 2, who is a purplish Crimson, appears. The Blossom 3 is a pale Crimson, whose Petals or at such Distance at the Bottom, that the Empalement appears between. The Stile & a darker Crimson, The Summits 5, dark Brown, with a yellow Farina, The Calix 6, shew the several Parts of the Flower, & the young Fruit in the Calix below the Blo Leaves 7, are smooth, shining, serrated round, of a full Green, on the Backs they are White is a whitish Yellow, in some parts greenish, covered with a White Cotton or Down, Towar it gradually becomes of a rich Colour, between Scarlet & Crimson, The Stone, 8 adjoining Fruit, in some is Red, in others Pale, but in all very rugged and fixed to the Fruit of a small Peach in its full Size. a. b. c. are Parts magnified.

VIRTUES.

The Blossoms purge gently, and when made into a Syrup is used for Childre is cooling and delicious.

T. Sheldrake delin.